NEW YORK HO!
SAILING CARGO VESSEL “ANEMOS” IS APPROACHING AMERICA.
HER PROGRAM.

The first sailing cargo ship of TOWT’s fleet is about to complete her maiden transatlantic voyage. Her holds are filled with over 1,000 tonnes of French cargo.

After just 15 days of sailing at an average speed still just below 10 knots, Sailing Vessel (SV) “Anemos” is currently only a few hundreds nautical miles from New York.

Estimated Time of Arrival (ETA): Tuesday 3rd, September; 06:00 am

Objective achieved for TOWT: the maiden voyage crossing has mostly been completed under sail. A revolution in sustainable maritime transport.

Anemos, a highly technological vessel measuring 81 meter long and 13 meter high, is the first sistership in a fleet of 8 ships. It can transport over 1100 tons of cargo using wind power, reducing emissions by more than 90% compared to a conventional container ship.

First successful transatlantic crossing

Departing from France on August 16th, TOWT's first sailing cargo ship will arrive in New York in a few days with a crew of just 7 sailors and over 900 US pallets of 1.2-ton cargo. The ship's route took into account the winds encountered, mainly from the west, forcing the ship to adjust its course to avoid the strongest winds.

The crew took their bearings in the first days of the crossing to adapt to the handling of a large, modern and extremely innovative sailing cargo vessel. Some technical adjustments were required, which is expected for a new ship on the open sea.

On board: French cargo blowing in the wind

On board : Wine, cognac, champagne, but also jam, swimsuits, and many other manufactured products of many pioneering French cargo owners who have trusted TOWT. Among the brands on board this maiden voyage: Martell Mumm Perrier-Jouët, Château La Coste, Maison Joseph Drouhin, Andros, Chartreuse, Vilebrequin, and many confidential other.
